Thieves take ATV and candy from fire hall

By Joseph Quigley

Thieves stole a rescue ATV, Halloween candy, fundraiser meat and inflicted damage at the Gooderham Fire Station around Oct. 27.

Highlands East acting fire chief Chris

Baughman confirmed someone entered the station Oct. 27 or early the next morning. They took several items, including a 2004 Arctic Cat ATV, $110 in Halloween candy and $200 worth of meat for fundraising barbecues. There were also minor scratches to a trailer, snowmobile and pumper.

Firefighters located and recovered the stolen ATV Nov. 3. But district fire chief Brian Horner said he questions why someone would target the hall.

"I understand people steal stuff, but a fire hall? That serves your community, that probably serves you?" Horner said. "It's the community's four-wheeler for helping them. I just don't understand why they would take something like that from a fire hall."

Horner said the ATV gets used to reach people in need out in the brush. He added firefighters got a tip about its location and contacted OPP before recovering it without

Police and fire news

Body in sunken truck was AH man

Haliburton Highlands OPP released the name of the deceased person found in a submerged truck in Kushog Lake Oct. 30.

Richard Victor Saucier, 68, of Algonquin Highlands, was reported missing and discovered in the truck near Highway 35.

Media relations officer Sean Hawley said the incident is not criminally-related. (Joseph Quigley) burning material and extinguished it. There was minimal structural damage and no water damage to the building, but there was extensive smoke damage.

Iles said the cause was material placed, or that fell against, the oil furnace chimney pipe and was ignited when the furnace came on.

"Never store items near furnaces, water heaters or electrical panels. Please ensure that your homes and cottages have working, up-to-date smoke alarms on all floors, (outside all sleeping areas) and CO alarms outside of all sleeping areas," Iles said. (Lisa Gervais)

Fire causes $60K damage in Eagle Lake

A Friday night fire in the Eagle Lake area has resulted in $60,000 in damages.

The Dysart et al fire department responded to a call on Cosmic Lane just after 8 p.m. Nov. 1. Fire chief Mike Iles said neighbours called when they heard a smoke alarm and saw smoke coming out of the building. No one was home.

The department responded with 17 firefighters and six fire trucks.

"Upon arrival, the house was full of smoke," Iles said.

He said they located the fire in the basement furnace room. They removed

Woman charged with spousal assault

Haliburton Highlands OPP arrested and charged a Hamilton woman with spousal assault after investigating a domestic incident at Eagle Lake.

The male victim reported being struck multiple times on the head with a liquor bottle. Officers went to the scene and discovered both the victim and the suspect had left together. They later found them together in a vehicle. The woman, 29, is scheduled to appear in Minden Court Dec. 4. Her name was not disclosed by police. (Joseph Quigley) altercation.

"Nice that we got it back and hopefully we can serve the community better," Horner said.

Firefighter Michael Purdon said he was the first person into the hall after the theft.

"It's pretty sad when you think, we use this equipment if somebody's got a life-threatening (situation), or are out in the middle of nowhere, and we need to get to them," Purdon said, adding the conversation about it was heated among firefighters.

"The guys were pretty steamed about it." The perpetrators also broke the hall's pop machine, rummaged through Horner's office and damaged its door.

"Nobody likes to be broken into," Horner said.

Firefighters hand out the Halloween candy to kids out of their trucks in the centre of Gooderham. The candy was replaced in time for the event.

"I sort of was more mad the Halloween candy for the kids was stolen, than the four-wheeler (ATV) because of insurance and everything," Horner said.

Haliburton Highlands OPP is investigating the incident. The detachment could not be reached for comment before press time.

Work underway to restore Moore Falls portage

By Lisa Gervais

Black Lake cottager Peter Fry would love nothing more than to take his seven-year-old granddaughter to Minden by boat.

But with Parks Canada taking out the boat rollers and putting in booms for safety reasons about four years ago, Fry, other Black, Gull and Moore lakes cottagers, plus Kilco Camp kids haven't been able to make the trip.

However, Minden by boat may soon be possible again as proponents, including Minden Hills councillor Pam Sayne, continue to talk with Parks Canada and the Ministry of Transportation (MTO) about the return of a safe portage.

"Please bring them [the boat rollers] back so that current and future generations can once again go to Minden by boat," Fry said in a written presentation Sayne made to Minden Hills council last month.

Sayne said that after a series of meetings with Parks Canada and the MTO, proponents are getting closer to again having a portage at Moore Falls.

Sayne said the most recent meeting was on Oct. 16.

"It's not going to be as difficult as we intended because of the co-operation from the MTO and Parks Canada," she told The Highlander.

Following an online petition and protest that saw Highway 35 at the dam blocked in 2017 so canoeists could portage across the road, Sayne said "people recognize there was a better way to work on this together.

We're doing it and we're making progress and there will be a portage there."

While it's still early days and no agreements are yet in place, Sayne said Parks Canada and the MTO hired a consultant to come up with portage options and they now have a preferred option. She noted a portage would be adjacent to Lutterworth Park.

She said they would be putting a call out for someone to volunteer to design and build infrastructure to make the proposed portage more user-friendly.

She noted Parks Canada is maintaining the booms, just aligning them in a way to make it easier to portage.

A spokeswoman for Parks Canada, Valerie de Winter, said a site visit was conducted Oct. 16 by representatives from Minden Hills, the MTO and Parks Canada.

"Parks Canada continues to work with the Township of Minden Hills and the Ministry of Transportation to review and to develop a solution for the portage route," she said.

"Given the complexities of the site, a safe portage route has to be carefully and fully analyzed prior to implementation."

She said visitor safety was of the "utmost importance" to Parks Canada, as dams present "a real risk to visitor safety, particularly when water levels and flows are higher than normal. Safety is a shared responsibility, and all visitors (boaters and land-based) should exercise caution around and on the water and stay well clear of dams," de Winter said.

Police charge three in drug ring investigation

By Joseph Quigley

Haliburton Highlands OPP has laid 21 charges against three people as part of an ongoing investigation into a theft and drug ring.

In a Nov. 1 press release, Haliburton Highlands OPP said detectives with its community street crime unit are investigating suspects in a multi-jurisdictional theft and drug operation.

Police have arrested and charged three locals in connection with the investigation so far.

"Since September 2019, police have been piecing together information regarding thefts and drugs connecting Haliburton County, Muskoka and Bancroft areas," the press release said.

Police have also recovered items as part of the investigation, including skid steers, trailers, boats and snowmobiles.

The press release said Sean Peter Martin, 38, of Minden Hills has been charged with two counts of possessing a prohibited weapon, possession of property obtained by crime over $5,000 and three counts of possessing a controlled substance – two for codeine, one for cocaine.

David Jonathan Mongrain, 42, of Dysart et al is charged with two counts of theft under $5,000, four counts of theft over $5,000, possessing property obtained by crime under $5,000, possessing property obtained by crime over $5,000 and possessing a controlled substance (cocaine).

Shelby Lorraine Montgomery, 28, of Minden Hills was charged with two counts of possession of a prohibited weapon, possessing property obtained by crime over $5,000 and three counts of possessing a controlled substance – two for codeine, one for cocaine.

Police said the accused are scheduled to make separate first appearances at the Ontario Court of Justice in Lindsay.

Anyone with information about the thefts or suspects involved with the ring is asked to contact the Haliburton Highlands OPP detachment at 705-286-1431 or the provincial communication centre at 888-310-1222. You can also contact Crime Stoppers at 800-222-8477 or ontariocrimestoppers.ca.

Mindenites try to revive cultural centre foundation

By Lisa Gervais

Patricia Walshe and Jack Brezina came to the Oct. 31 Minden Hills council meeting seeking support for the Minden Hills Cultural Centre Foundation.

Walshe said the foundation is similar to the Haliburton Highlands Health Services Foundation, which raises funds for the Haliburton Highlands Health Services. The Minden foundation raises money for the town's cultural centre.

By way of background, Walshe said it was created in 2002 and gained its charitable status in 2004. It raised $45,000 for the expansion of the Agnes Jamieson Gallery and donated $17,000 towards the building of Nature's Place. She said it had also supported a variety of arts, artists and events over a 10-year period.

However, it waned and it wasn't until 2015 that Brezina held a meeting to see if there was any interest in reviving the foundation. In 2016, there were only four board members left: Jim Mitchell, Sue Tiffin, Walshe and Brezina.

Walsh said she, Mitchell and Tiffin rewrote the objectives of the foundation to restrict financial benefits only to the cultural centre. She said a foundation has many other benefits than simply raising money, including: applying for grants that the cultural centre, being owned by the township, can't; issuing tax receipts for qualified contributions; applying for special event liquor licences; running popular events such as Fire & Ice and supporting special programs.

The problem, she said, is they were left with an approximate $700 debt which has been paid off personally by Mitchell and Walshe, "who hope to be paid back some day." The other issue is insurance. She said they won't operate without it, but insurance for directors and operators and event insurance is about $1,000 a year.

"Do we move forward of close the foundation?" she asked councillors.

For it to continue, she asked council for a loan of $2,500 which they would aim to pay back starting in 2021 but earlier if possible. Their ask included approximately $1,000 for insurance; approximately $150 for accounting fees, "more if audited which would allow for the Foundation to apply for grants" and approximately $150 annual web domain site. Walshe said the balance would be used as seed money for fundraising.

Walshe said the aims of the current board are to: expand the organization; plan and execute a minimum of three fundraising events in 2020; and by the end of 2020 be able to pay their annual expenses and contribute financially to the cultural centre.

Mayor Brent Devolin said he'd like a report back from staff on the "shape and form it could be done ... whether it's a loan or a grant. What our options are." He said they could then have a subsequent discussion at the council table.

Coun. Pam Sayne said she thought council supported the Foundation and would like to see faster action via pre-approval. However, Devolin said he didn't like pre-approving without having all of the information.

CAO and treasurer Lorrie Blanchard said she'd have to do some research about the $2,500 in financing.

Coun. Bob Carter said he also wanted to hear from staff as to how the foundation would work with the township.

Emily Stonehouse, economic development, destination and marketing officer, who oversees the cultural centre, said she'd bring more information to council's committee of the whole meeting in November.

Hydro One supervisor charged in fatality

By Joseph Quigley

Charges have been laid against the supervisor of a Hydro One employee who died on the job in Haliburton County March 21.

The Ministry of Labour, Training and Skills Development said it has concluded its investigation into the matter. In September, supervisor and worker was charged under the Occupational Health and Safety Act with failing to take every precaution reasonable in the circumstances for the protection of a worker and failing to work in a manner that did not endanger other workers.

The ministry has not announced charges against Hydro One as a company itself. With the investigation finished, Ministry spokesperson Janet Deline said "at this time, charges have been laid against the individual only."

The fatality occurred in the County of Haliburton after an industrial accident on Coleman Lake Road. A 25-year-old Sydenham man was taken to local hospital, where he was pronounced deceased, according to OPP at the time.

The Minden man is scheduled for a first appearance Nov. 28 at the Ontario Court of Justice in Lindsay.

A Hydro One spokesperson said the company could not comment as the matter is before the courts.

In a March 21 Facebook post after the incident, Hydro One confirmed the Sydenham man died due to injuries on the job and it welcomed the ministry investigation.

"We are deeply saddened by the loss of our employee and, above all else, our thoughts and condolences are with the family, friends and colleagues," Hydro One said. "There is nothing more important to us than the safety of our employees."

The Highlander will provide more information as it is made available.

We must remember them

I went to HIFF Saturday night to see the screening of Brotherhood. All up, around 350 people saw the movie over the course of the weekend. For those unfamiliar with the film, it's a bit of a coming of age tale about young men during a tragic mass drowning on Balsam Lake.

It was set in 1926, eight years after the end of the First World War. Many of the young men in the film had lost their fathers to the war that was supposed to end all wars.

Only three of the boys survived, to live to see the start of the Second World War in 1939, a campaign that stretched until 1945.

I found the timing of the film to be serendipitous considering we will be honouring war veterans at Remembrance Day ceremonies across the region this coming Monday.

One of the film's young actors attended the screening and spoke to the audience Saturday night. Sam Ashe Arnold is a 16-year-old from Ottawa. When asked by a member of the crowd for a status on his acting career, Ashe Arnold said he'd be working on a film in the spring about Kent State. He said it as if no one in the seats knew about Kent State.

Of course, HIFF audiences, like many in Haliburton County, are populated by a generation that would know Kent State.

The last film of any significance on this incident was released in 1981, long before Ashe Arnold was born in 2003.

The movie is based on the true story of the student protests at Kent State University in Ohio. This film focused on the four students who were killed when the National Guard attempted to quell the riots that began on May 4, 1970, after President Richard Nixon announced that American troops would begin bombing the heretofore neutral country of Cambodia.

Many of us know Neil Young's famous song, Four Dead in Ohio, based on the events.

It behooves those of us who were alive for these events: whether it be a connection to the First or Second World Wars, Korea, Vietnam, Afghanistan, or conflicts elsewhere, to ensure the Sam Ashe Arnold's of the world know the history of armed conflict across the globe - and more importantly how they impacted Canada and Canadians.

That is why every year The Highlander searches for a fresh story or two to mark Remembrance Day.

In today's edition we feature two such stories. One is about the Haliburton Legion acquiring gifted tulip bulbs from the Netherlands. They have planted those bulbs near the Cenotaph is hopes of a colourful spring bloom in 2020 - the 75th anniversary of the end of the Second World War.

The other story is about 96-year-old war veteran Mabel Brannigan from Minden. She is writing a series of stories about local war veterans from the 1939-1945 campaign to honour them next year.

On Nov. 11 there will be services in Haliburton, Minden and Wilberforce as usual. We urge all County residents to attend these commemorations. In Haliburton, the service is held at the Cenotaph; in Minden, at the Village Green Cenotaph and in Wilberforce at the Wilberforce Legion Branch 624.

We must remember them.

Fear not the answer to crime

"What is the world coming to?"

Any time we cover a serious police story, at least one person will ask this question. The nature of the crime - or whether it is a crime at all - need not apply. This news gets people worried about what is happening in their communities and that is understandable.

But context is always vital. We must work to understand the context before having a knee-jerk response about the state of crime in a community. If we do not, our response may be lacking or outright incorrect.

These past two weeks, we have reported on more police news than usual. OPP arrested three people in a multi-jurisdictional drug ring. A body was found in a sunken truck. Some person(s) stole from the Gooderham fire hall and Parkside Laundry in Haliburton.

These stories can be startling. They impact people and places we care about. They might make us afraid and leave us wanting to question security. They could make us question our idyllic perceptions of the County of Haliburton.

In context, however, they can be less scary than they appear. The death of a person in the truck is tragic, but not criminal. A theft targeting a fire hall is terrible, but the damage was at least relatively minor and a stolen ATV was recovered. A drug-ring is concerning, but police are addressing it with some success getting stolen goods back.

Even the two reported homicides this past summer, though frightening, may not be indicative of a larger trend.

Crime is no stranger to Haliburton, which is not good, but also means it is not as unusual at it can seem. Police departments are not necessarily consistent in what information they release to the public, particularly if they lack staffing. There is plenty of crime that the public is not made aware of, which is worrisome, but may also make a week like this less alarming. We also tend not to hear about when cases get solved, which could bring some relief.

It is our job to provide that greater context and it is something we will work to do.

It is worth noting though crime rates have increased over the past four years nationally, Canada's crime severity index was still 15 per cent lower in 2018 than it was a decade ago.

None of this is to say we should not heed reports of crime in the community. Victims should be helped. We should also look for ways to address thefts and drug crime, whether that be through law enforcement, security or government initiatives. We must also always strive to tackle the roots of crime, such as poverty.

But think critically and avoid being consumed by dour news. Be mindful of what you do not know before leaping to conclusions. It is all too easy to be fearful when this information reaches our ears, but reports of crime do not mean Haliburton has lost its way. They do not mean you are unsafe.

Disappointed in County council

Dear editor,

On Sept. 27, I attended the Joint Environment Committee of County Council. I was very impressed by the overall respect and collaboration between its members. Dysart et al Coun. John Smith had brought forward a request to declare Haliburton County a 'Climate Emergency.'

I was thrilled there was unanimous support despite no formal vote. The committee has no decision-making authority. Warden Liz Danielson suggested each council should encourage the County to declare an emergency. I had intended to send them a letter relaying how proud I was of their decision, but procrastination prevailed.

Dysart's Environment and Climate Change Committee quickly passed a motion Oct. 10, requesting council indicate to the County that they wanted a declaration. It passed but council deferred the item, at Mayor Roberts request, pending the discussion scheduled for the next day (Oct. 23) at County.

In an open letter signed by over 11,000 scientists from The Alliance of World Scientists, they are taking a stand. "We declare ... clearly and unequivocally that planet Earth is facing a climate emergency," says the letter's opening statement.

Alina Fisher states, "People do understand (climate change) but they don't see how it affects them. It's important for us as scientists to bridge that gap. The climate crisis is closely linked to excessive consumption of the wealthy lifestyle. We must change how we live," it stated.

Energy sources must move beyond carbon. Diets must include less meat.

"Excessive extraction of materials and overexploitation of ecosystems, driven by economic growth, must be quickly curtailed ... We must protect and restore Earth's ecosystems."

Emma Lim an activist from #NoFutureNo Children states, "It is easier to bear the pain of not having children than it is to bear the pain of not being able to protect them."

Citizens of Haliburton County, there is no time for procrastination. We need County Council to take action now to take a stand for our/your future children and our global community to declare Haliburton County a Climate Emergency. The plan can then move forward with the assistance of the new co-ordinator and council.

United Way building partnerships in County

By Lisa Gervais

Lianna Hardy of Community Living Trent Highlands in Haliburton knows the importance of the United Way.

Last September, thanks to United Way, they were able to build community gardens at 73 Victoria St.

"Members from the United Way came and volunteered their time and it was instrumental in getting the garden beds built and the pathways and the granite screening put down," Hardy said at the local launch of the United Way campaign at the OPP detachment in Minden Oct. 29.

She said since then, it's been "amazing." She estimated they have about 22 garden beds. Organizations donate a bit of money and can use the plots. For example, SIRCH uses the produce it grows for its Cook It Up program.

She said people also learn the gamut of gardening, from seeds and planting, to maintenance and harvesting.

Along the way, she said they've built great community partnerships.

Anne Manley adds a plug for Job Quest. It's an employment program targeted to meet the needs of people with barriers that prohibit them from finding and keeping a job.

Despite all of that, Hardy said United Way is not as well known locally as it is in Lindsay and Peterborough.

Penny Barton Dyke, the executive director of United Way for the City of Kawartha Lakes, said last Tuesday's event was to highlight some of the work of local agencies that have received United Way support for the past several years.

She noted that in the past four years, the LCBO funds raised in the County through the At the Til Campaign total $100,811. Some of the past recipients have included Food for Kids; Big Brothers Big Sisters and EarlyON.

"This workplace campaign is critical to this community and the funds have been invested in youth as requested in its early days," said community investment coordinator Shantal Ingram.

"We are grateful for the commitment of the LCBO staff and patrons and look forward to continuing the work together to support local programs," she added.

Barton Dyke noted they are also part of the Poverty Reduction Strategy. Last spring, they expanded their bursary program to Haliburton Highlands Secondary School.

They're also involved in the province-wide 211 help system that County residents use.

She said local organizations can get involved by starting a workplace campaign, holding a special event, getting involved in a day of caring or volunteering.

"All funds raised in Haliburton County will stay in Haliburton County."

Elementary teachers vote in favour of strike

By Joseph Quigley

Members of the Elementary Teachers' Federation of Ontario (ETFO) have given their central bargaining team a strike mandate, with 98 per cent voting in favour.

The ETFO announced the results Nov. 1, encompassing 83,000 members including teachers, occasional teachers and designated early childhood educators. In separate votes, teachers plus occupational teachers and education workers each gave 98 per cent support. The votes occurred in boards across the province in September and October, including for Trillium Lakelands District School Board (TLDSB) in Lindsay Oct. 16.

ETFO TLDSB local teacher representative Karen Bratina said she is pleased by the results. "A 98 per cent strike mandate should make this government stand up and listen," Bratina said. "This mandate demonstrates solidarity among teachers across this province and proves that Ontario teachers are solidly behind ETFO."

A local breakdown of central strike voting was not made available. ETFO president Sam Hammond said at a Nov. 1 press conference members have concerns going unaddressed by the province in negotiations, including a lack of frontline supports for special needs students, class sizes, violence in elementary schools and possible program cuts.

"All we have received are evasive non-answers, so we've moved forward with the legal avenues," Hammond said. "Our members are overwhelmingly behind their central bargaining team and expect, absolutely expect, the government to get serious at the bargaining table."

ETFO has asked for a "no board" report from the Minister of Labour after a conciliation meeting Nov. 4.

The report is another step toward a strike, with the union able to enter one on the 17th day after the report is released.

"It became apparent that the government and school board agencies were not interested in arriving at a fair settlement," ETFO said in a press release.

The organization is not yet taking job action and Hammond did not provide any timelines for when such an action might occur. But the vote enables ETFO to possibly proceed with central strike action at a later date. Minister of Education Stephen Lecce said in a Nov. 1 statement the government has been a "reasonable and constructive force at the bargaining table."

"ETFO has taken another escalating step towards a strike which will disproportionately hurt our kids," Lecce said. "I support a deal, not a strike. Our team remains unequivocal in our determination to land a deal with our labour partners as soon as possible to keep kids in our classroom." Hammond has said the province asked ETFO to find $150 million in cuts in concessions in their collective agreement. "ETFO will not consider funding cuts for elementary programs in the system," Hammond said.

War vet telling their stories Series planned to run in 2020

By Lisa Gervais

Mabel Brannigan sits at her dining room table in Minden, hunched over a writing project she has embarked upon. It will honour local veterans during the 75th anniversary of the end of the Second World War in 2020.

The 96-year-old war veteran, for whom the Minden Legion is named, is a little over half way through the stories she is penning about Haliburton County veterans. She hopes to be done by the end of the year.

She is calling it the 'Left to Tell' series since there aren't many of her vintage remaining.

"I have to do this to pay tribute to these boys, and a few girls, from Haliburton County," she tells The Highlander - which will be publishing her series in the lead-up to Remembrance Day 2020.

"I am in my 96th year," she continues, "and I remember most of the boys. All or nearly all have died." She emphasized it's important to her to write about these "courageous" people. "They gave their today for your tomorrow." She said we all owe them a tremendous debt of gratitude.

She said writing the articles also saddens her since all of them are gone. In a 2016 video, as part of The Highlanders' Veterans of Haliburton County series, Brannigan said, "They're all gone. I've got no friends here of my age."

The writer hands over a sheet of paper, in black ink, the lines running slightly up and to the right but exceedingly legible for a woman on the cusp of 97 years.

"No matter what their motivation, the men and women in our armed forces were willing to put their own lives at risk for an ideal," the paper reads. "They believed in the value of what they were doing. They faced incredible hardships, witnessed events that no one should have to witness and pushed themselves to the limit of their endurance."

2020 also marks the 75th anniversary of D-Day, when thousands of allied troops mobilized on the beaches of France. Canada's part was mainly on Juno Beach, suffering heavy casualties.

"But they knew it must succeed," said Brannigan. "If it didn't, what would?"

She noted how Canadians today are welcome with open arms in Normandy and in countries such as The Netherlands where Canadians played a vital role in freeing them from Nazi occupation.

"Many from Haliburton served and died in Italy, too," Brannigan noted.

"We honour the courage and sacrifice for those who secured freedom for all of us. Lest us forget."

While she doesn't want to talk about her own service, insisting on paying tribute to those she is writing about, Brannigan went to Yorkton, Saskatchewan as a teenager and was then stationed in Ottawa.

Haliburton recognizes Netherlands liberation with tulips

By Joseph Quigley

The efforts of Canadians to liberate the Nazi-occupied Netherlands 75 years ago will be recognized with the blossoming of tulips in Haliburton next year.

The Royal Canadian Legion Branch 129 Haliburton is taking part in the Liberation75 celebration and planted a new tulip garden at the Haliburton cenotaph Oct. 23. The initiative from the National Capital Commission, the Canadian Tulip Festival and the Embassy of the Kingdom of the Netherlands aims to have 1.1 million Liberation75 tulips blossom across Canada this spring, one for every Canadian who served during the Second World War.

Public relations officer Linda Heeps said it is good for a small community such as Haliburton to be recognized as part of a larger national effort.

"So, when they say where the bulb is planted, Haliburton is on that map," Heeps said. "I just think it's nice Haliburton does their part to respect what happened in the past and we're part of the bigger picture."

The tulip tradition began at the end of the Second World War after Canadian forces fought to liberate the Netherlands between 1944 and 1945. Princess Julianna gifted 100,000 tulip bulbs to Canadians for their role. The country has gifted Canada 20,000 tulips every year since then.

Dysart et al permitted the legion to plant a garden at the cenotaph, which features 75 tulip and 40 purple Grape Hyacinth bulbs. Heeps said she originally wanted to have the garden outside the legion, but there were fears they would be ruined by deer which frequent the area.

To prevent that by the cenotaph, Heeps said the garden will have repellent regularly applied.

"Hopefully, the deer will be kind enough to leave them alone," she said.

A white stone was placed in front of the garden, with a ceremony planned for the spring when the flowers blossom.

But the tulips will grow beyond the legion's garden project. The Liberation75 initiative is offering bulbs for purchase by private citizens as well.

Local Jim Frost has an order of the tulips on the way for his own garden. He said it was good for any Canadian citizen to take Haliburton Master gardeners Carolyn Langdon and Winnie Kasepчук and Haliburton Legion member Lynn Pitman plant a new tulip garden at the cenotaph Oct. 23.

Submitted.

"This was a wonderful thing," Frost said. "The relationship between Canada and Holland is wonderful and I just think we should be involved in helping celebrate."

Tulips are still available for sale at liberation75.ca at 15 bulbs for $15, which come directly from Holland. For every bag sold, $1 will go to the Royal Canadian Legion while the remainder will support the Canadian Tulip Festival.

Heeps said she plans for the new tulip garden to become a permanent fixture.

"I plan for that garden to be there forever," Heeps said. "Once the bulbs are established, they'll just keep growing."

Bantams battle back for tie, drop another

On Friday, Nov. 1, the Peppermill/McKecks Highland Storm Bantams headed to Little Britain to take on the Mariposa Lightning.

With great battles back-and-forth through the first period, the Lightning managed to score at the end of the first to put them up 1-0.

With the Storm trying to get onto the board with some great passing, Kyan Hall put the puck in the net assisted by Kaine Brannigan. The Lightning managed to go ahead again by one with 43 seconds left in the second to put them ahead 2-1 going into the third.

The third period saw a lot more back-and-forth action and the Lightning scored another to put them up 3-1. The Storm kept battling and with 46 seconds left in the third, Hall netted another with the assists going to Cooper Coles and Aiden Perrott. The Storm kept the pressure on and with four seconds left, Brannigan scored to tie the game. A great effort by all the players including goaltender Ethan Dobson.

The Bantams faced a tough Lindsay Muskies team on Sunday, Nov. 3. With a strong effort by the Storm, they were unable to capitalize and fell 10-0 to the Muskies.

The next game for the Bantams is versus Almaguin on Friday, Nov. 8 at 8:30 p.m. in Haliburton.

#1 ETHAN ROWE

Ethan had an amazing game on Saturday and was a great support to his team. He played hard, and was relentless on offence, taking some great shots, scoring twice and making two assists.

#2 CARTER SHAW & ZACK LOWES

These two goaltenders put on a real show during Saturday's game, making some incredible saves to deny the opposition and even faced down a few breakaways. Both players performed really well under pressure.

#3 MAXIME LITTLE

Maxime was a major factor in Saturday's game. His great defensive play helped to stop the opposition from catching up in the scoring and he played with a lot of heart.

Atom Yellow win big

The Dewayne Simms Construction – TD Canada Trust LL Atom Yellow hosted Huntsville on Saturday. The Storm started out strong with three goals in the first period, kicked off by Isaac Borgdorff, unassisted. Taylor Mulock scored next with help from Veronica Heasman and Ethan Rowe, then Heasman rounded out the first period with a goal of her own, beating the crowd in the Huntsville end and sneaking the puck into the net.

The second period was a chance for the Storm goaltenders to shine. Both Carter Shaw and Zack Lowes made some massive saves, keeping a strong Huntsville offence at bay. Mulock scored with only 16 seconds left on the clock, assisted by Rowe.

In the third period, the Storm kept the pressure on in the Huntsville end. I. Borgdorff scored a shorthanded goal, assisted by Jaxen Casey. Rowe could not be stopped, scoring twice, assisted by Gideon Borgdorff. Overall, this great team effort brought the Storm a 7-2 victory.

Red Hawks fly to first victory despite clipped wings

By Joseph Quigley

The Haliburton Highlands Secondary School senior football team celebrated after finishing its season with a 28-7 win against the St. Peters Saints Nov. 1.

The Red Hawks' offence exploded with four touchdowns, putting up more points than the team's previous five games combined. The team avoided a last-place finish with a win, finishing with a 1-5 record.

The team was out of the playoffs regardless of the outcome. Coach Tim Davies said he asked his players if they wanted to play cautiously and avoid injuries to save themselves for other sports.

"Nope, we're playing coach," Davies said about their response. "Thankfully, there were no injuries that I know of. Got a victory out of it. It was a nice way to end the season."

Tailback Camden Marra had to fill in as a quarterback due to injuries.

But he kicked off the scoring in the second quarter with running plays, scoring back-to-back touchdowns and completing a two-point conversion to go up 14-0 at the half.

"It was definitely nerve-wracking," Marra said. "The guys were there to help me out and the previous quarterbacks were helping me as well."

The Red Hawks defence largely contained the Saints in a scoreless third quarter. Marra completed a pass to Desi Davies in the fourth, who ran it in for a touchdown, followed by a two-point conversion.

The Saints would score a touchdown after a costly penalty, but the Hawks came right back to score on the next drive, with Carson Sisson getting a touchdown on a passing play.

Marra credited his blockers for the team's offensive success.

"Excellent O-line today. The blocking was done well and we had lots of time to let plays develop," Marra said.

Davies said it is difficult to run a physical-contact program like football with a small number of players, due to injuries. He added ideally there would be 36 players at the beginning of the season, but they only had 24.

"I'll say this, our kids love their football," Davies said. "The school population is half the size of what it was in its heyday. You need many bodies."

He added football is a good sport to run for larger athletes.

"The football program's for the big fellas," Davies said. "You don't win without them. Hats off to our big boys in today's game, because they're the reason that we won."

"We had some injuries that took a toll on the season," Marra said. "But it's all about improvement, so that's what we're going to do and hopefully we'll come back stronger next year."

Senior boys volleyball falls short in five-set thriller with St. Thomas

By Joseph Quigley

The Haliburton Highlands Secondary School senior boys volleyball team came up just short of advancing to regionals after a five-set loss to St. Thomas Aquinas (STA) Nov. 5.

The two teams had a back-and-forth tilt in Haliburton for the Kawartha semi-finals, with a berth to the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Athletics Association (COSSA) competition on the line.

The underdog Haliburton Red Hawks could not overcome the higher-seeded STA, losing sets one, three and five in the best-of-five match by 25-15, 26-24 and 15-9.

The Red Hawks did prevail in the second and fourth sets to force a tiebreaker, winning 25-15 and 25-21.

Coach Brett Caputo said the team exceeded expectations.

"The expectations were we would compete, but I didn't think at this point we would give them a run for their money," Caputo said. "Going five was great and it was exciting for them."

It was a close contest throughout. After the teams split the first two sets, the third came close, with the teams tying at 24. STA took the set 26-24 after the Red Hawks missed a serve and then sent a shot into the ceiling.

"It was tough," captain Jacob Dobson said. "They played well, both teams played well."

With the season on the line, the Red Hawks did not start the fourth set well, falling behind 8-2. But they would rally back to tie it 9-9. The teams played close from there, before the Hawks finished with a 6-1 run to send the match to tiebreaker.

"We all knew that it was within reach. We just all needed to play our best and everyone did," Dobson said about the rally. "Everyone took the energy, the excitement of making it that far and knew we had this."

But the Hawks could not control the lead in the last set. STA went ahead 5-2 and never looked back, ending the game with a 15-9 victory.

"First time playing a five-set match," Caputo said. "It's a long, tiresome type of game. You have to stay mentally focused in it. Our focus, I think, was up and down through the match."

The school's volleyball program is in its third year, with this being the first time it has fielded a senior team. Caputo said that meant the team was a lot younger than their competition, with more Grade 11s.

"Everything after this (year) should be building towards a better program," Caputo said. "We did well and we look forward to seeing where things go in the future."

"We definitely played to where we hoped we'd be at the end of the season," Dobson said. "We fought quite hard against them and put up a good fight."

Brotherhood arrives on other side of lake

A weekend of rain, snow and cold was just the ticket for the Haliburton International Film Festival (HIFF). It saw record crowds come through the doors of the Northern Lights Performing Arts Pavilion Nov. 1-3.

The Saturday screening of Brotherhood was sold-out. In attendance was writer and director Richard Bell and actors Sam Ashe Arnold and Perry Mucci. Bell said that in bringing the movie to Haliburton, "tonight they [the Brotherhood of St. Andrew] arrived on the other side of the lake." In the movie, eight people drown in a war canoe travelling from their leadership camp on Balsam Lake to Coboconk. The movie was shown again Sunday to another large audience. One of the survivors' (Arthur Lambden's) niece was in attendance and read a moving poem penned by her uncle. Another six movies were screened over the weekend.

Committee member Marci Mandel said, "HIFF 13 was a tremendous artistic success. Brotherhood had quite a buzz beforehand and lived up to the hype receiving a standing ovation for director and writer

Richard Bell.

"In total, 350 people watched this powerful film, which is probably our largest audience ever," she said.

She added there were a lot of memorable characters from the weekend who will live on in the hearts and minds of movie goers - both cottagers and locals.

"The theme of community resonated throughout the event and organizers couldn't be happier. Thanks to our sponsors and patrons. Together we'll be back doing it again next year," she said. (Lisa Gervais)

Inclusion from Canberra to the County

By Lisa Gervais

The program producer of the National Gallery of Australia crouches down in front of a sculpture of a reassembled tree that has been hinged together with steel brackets and has a wooden crutch leaning against it.

She's surrounded by members of the Art-Making for the Health of It! group.

Together, they discuss what Jocelyn Purdie's art installation at the Agnes Jamieson Gallery in Minden means to them.

Recently, Adriane Boag was a guest of Fay Wilkinson, a registered expressive arts consultant, educator, storyteller and artist who resides in Haliburton.

The Canberra resident also did a lunch and learn at the college; a talk at the Abbey Retreat Centre and a workshop at the Rails End Gallery during her stay.

She talked a lot during her visit about the Art and Dementia programs her gallery does; the supporting research around how it is helping people; programs for people in palliative care; those living with mental health challenges; children in hospital, and the NGA ArtMed program, a partnership with the Australian National University for medical students.

The theme of the week also lent itself to discussions about how similar programs could be developed in Haliburton County.

"She understands the rural context," explained Wilkinson at the speakers' series at the Abbey Retreat Centre Oct. 15. "There will be discussion about 'how do we do this in our community?'"

"Take whatever you want and make it yours," Boag added. "I'm very keen to work with Fay in this area."

Boag has been sharing the gallery's work around the world, at conferences in South Korea, New York, Italy, Japan and this fall in Montreal. She has also been the subject of a TED Talk.

Wilkinson and Boag met last year when the Haliburton artist was invited to speak at a conference in Australia.

Boag said a dementia diagnosis can come with a lot of grief. She added there is a focus on what people can no longer do, versus what they can still do. She said the art and dementia program is about "going forward in an optimistic way."

People with dementia come to the gallery with their carers to look at art, discuss and create. In some cases, the gallery comes to them via outreach.

Boag talked about a man named Chris, who had visited the gallery every two weeks for four years and told them, "I am leading the best life I ever have."

She said test results have shown that over time the visits lower cortisol levels to more normal levels.

Commenting on the palliative program, in which they have brought people at end of life to the gallery to look at pieces, such as by Monet, she said it provides distraction and respite.

Dulce Acero lights candles on the altar of the Day of the Dead at Haliburton Highlands Museum Nov. 1.

Day of the Dead: gone but not forgotten

By Lisa Gervais

Haliburton County celebrated a Mexican tradition Nov. 1, holding the second annual Day of the Dead at the Haliburton Highlands Museum.

Day of the Dead honours ancestors and departed loved ones with altars containing photographs, flowers, candles, and favorite treats.

Organizers said it's a time of year when many cultures believe the veil to the spirit world is thin.

They said the act of honouring family with altars in homes, and visiting cemeteries, is to show loved ones they are not forgotten.

It's one of the most lively and beautiful festivals in Mexico, full of flowers, music, art, costumes, and candlelight.

One reason for the lack of somberness is that this Mexican tradition speaks to a joyful afterlife, and that death is nothing to fear. So, for instance, to dress as a skeleton is essentially to laugh at fear. Secondly, the displays of colour, and joy, and laughter are also to show departed loved ones that remaining family and friends are okay.

Dulce Acero said the altar at the museum had doubled in size this year and Haliburtonians, "actually really like the sentiment. As scary as it is sometimes when people leave us, it's a nice way to remember that they're actually not really gone. We put out their pictures, eat their favourite food, listen to their music. It's really all about them. As long as we remember them, as long as they're in our hearts and our minds, they're never really gone."

She said she loves sharing her Mexican culture with her County neighbours.

"It absolutely is a gift. In this culture, death is such a scary, negative thing and people don't like to talk about it. But in Mexico, it's not seen as that. That's why it's a celebration. It's literally a holiday. It's an entire week of all of this because they're still here, so we celebrate that they're still here. It's difficult because yes, we want them here physically, but they're still here for sure."

Folk society brings voice straight from the heavens

By Lisa Gervais

Sue Shikaze quotes Lisa Schwartz of the Philadelphia Folk Festival in describing Irish Mythen, who is coming to Haliburton to perform Nov. 9.

"I had no idea what to expect when this five-foot nothing lady took the stage, all smiles and twinkling eyes and guitar. Then, she opened her mouth and out flew a voice that came straight from the heavens ..."

Shikaze, of the Haliburton County Folk Society (HCFS), said an incredible night of music awaits as powerhouse performer Irish Mythen does a solo concert at the Highland Hills United Church in Minden.

She said Irish Mythen was born in Ireland and now calls Charlottetown, PEI home. She has performed at festivals around the world and has released three full-length albums and two EPs. Her music has earned her nominations and wins from Music PEI, East Coast Music Association, Folk Alliance International and Socan.

Shikaze added that she is, by vote, one of the three most requested artists to return to the Mariposa Folk Festival in Orillia.

This is show number two of the 2019-20 concert series hosted by the HCFS. Local musicians Jacob Outram and Scott Duggan will do an opening set.

"Irish Mythen is a performer not to be missed. Be prepared for a performance that is full of wild emotion as she pours her heart and soul into every word she sings. You will be left in awe of her vocal talent, and remembering the show, songs and performer long after you've walked away," Shikaze said.

Tickets for the Saturday evening concert are still available but selling fast. Find them online at haliburtonfolk.com or in Minden at On the Spot Variety and Haliburton at Halco/The Source. Adults $25, students and HCFS members $20. $30 at the door.

Irish Mythen is performing in Minden on Saturday, Nov. 9. Photo by Lisa MacIntosh.
