County gets Canada's first pot-friendly resort

By Joseph Quigley

Sir Sam's Inn and Spa is pronouncing itself as the first publicly cannabis-friendly resort in Canada.

The resort has partnered with the cannabis tourism company Cannabis Hotels to list themselves as cannabis-friendly. The resort is introducing areas which will allow for cannabis use in accordance with smoking regulations.

Resort director of business development Jon Massey said the hotel is not shying away from the fact recreational cannabis is now legal.

"We acknowledge that with the law coming into place, the same as every other hotel, there is a chance that guests would want to come and use cannabis while at the resort," Massey said. "This is about managing it so guests that aren't using cannabis, the majority that aren't using cannabis, are not impacted by those that do want to use it. And those that do want to use it feel free to do so."

Massey said the resort will have guidebooks for guests that will clearly lay out the rules on where they can consume.

Smoking is not allowed in the main building or the rooms themselves.

"We are putting into place smoking areas designated for cannabis that are still nice places to be able to enjoy the scenery and the experience at the inn, but will not impede other guests," Massey said.

He added with the federal government planning to legalize cannabis edibles and

Cannabis Hotels: 'important step'

extracts by Oct. 17, the potential impact to non-users will decline as people try other options besides smoking the drug.

Cannabis Hotels CEO Wendy Forwell called the move an important step for the industry.

"Sir Sam's Inn and Spa is taking a leadership role in developing Ontario as a premium cannabis tourism destination, which will open opportunities for others across the province," Forwell said.

Massey said this could spark industry conversation.

"It may open up more conversation both inside and outside of the industry about what this is going to look like in the landscape going forward," he said.

He declined to comment about how the resort thinks local guests might respond to the change.

But he said the intention is not for Sir Sam's to become an exclusively cannabis-smoking resort.

"We just chose to say we want to manage it," Massey said. "We've always been an inclusive resort for all of our guests that come here and we want to make sure we stay that way."

County getting $1.8 million to replace Hawk Lake Road bridge

By Joseph Quigley

The County of Haliburton is replacing the worn down 94-year-old Little Hawk Lake Road bridge in Algonquin Highlands after confirming over $1.8 million in funding for the project.

Haliburton-Kawartha Lakes-Brock MPP Laurie Scott announced the province would commit $750,587 to the project June 1, representing one-third of the approximately $2.252 million total cost. The county anticipates the federal government will cover half the funding at approximately $1.126 million.

The single-lane bridge was last rehabilitated in 1993 and has an average of 230 vehicles per day. However, the county said it has significantly deteriorated. The load restriction also prevents firetrucks from crossing, requiring them to take a 12-kilometre detour.

“We really need it,” Warden Liz Danielsen said. “We can get firetrucks over the bridge, the plows can travel easier, quite a bit better water flow here. It helps in so many ways to get this project done.”

Scott said this was a major priority.

“The bridge is desperate, it had to be replaced. It’s very hard for small municipalities to do all the projects that they have to do,” she said. “Haliburton County has been asking for help for several years because it is a large amount of money. Two million makes a big difference for a budget of this size.”

The new bridge will remain single-lane but be widened to better accommodate plows. The structure will also be elevated by half a metre to provide for greater water capacity beneath it.

“It really is such an important part of our sustainability,” county chief administrative officer Mike Rutter said.

The federal government has not yet confirmed its contribution to the work but Scott said she expects their funding will come soon.

The county plans to tender the replacement structure in the summer, with construction taking place in the fall.

“I’ve crossed this bridge all my life. I know we have very big routes in this part of Haliburton County,” Scott said. “I’ll feel more secure when we get a new bridge.”

OPP news

Fatal ATV accident

OPP are continuing to investigate a fatal all-terrain vehicle rollover that claimed the life of a 54-year-old Minden man this past weekend.

As of press time, Constable Amanda Gilbert of the Haliburton Highlands detachment was unable to provide an update on the June 1 incident on Triangle Trail.

In a weekend press release, police said they, and emergency crews, responded about 9:45 a.m.

They said the man was pronounced dead at the scene. He was the driver and lone occupant of the ATV.

OPP Technical Traffic Collision Investigators attended the scene to assist with the investigation.

OPP say on May 29, they executed a search warrant in Highlands East.

They said officers seized suspected fentanyl, heroin, crystal methamphetamine and cocaine valued at $4,700.

Officers also seized tools and other items stolen in May from a business on Hastings Street North.

As a result, three people were arrested at the residence.

Recycling crisis hits Haliburton Garbutt Disposal to close Lochlin facility

By Lisa Gervais

A worldwide crisis of crashed markets for recycling has hit Minden Hills, with Garbutt Disposal telling council and staff May 30 it plans to close its Lochlin recycling facility, likely in the fall.

Owner Jim Garbutt made a presentation to the regular council meeting, pitching that the alternative is the municipality take over the facility.

Garbutt Disposal has recycled mixed paper and corrugated cardboard for the township for about 15 years.

"Recently, all recyclable materials have become a major problem in Canada over the last year due to flooded markets and no demand, which in turn means higher processing fees to compensate for the loss in revenue," Garbutt told council and staff at the meeting last Thursday. He added, "Small businesses need to make money."

Garbutt said he had spent four days prior to the meeting going over the books.

He said their cost to process one ton of baled corrugated cardboard is $105. However, their current price for their product in Toronto is $90 per ton, which he says is the best price currently available. So, they're losing $15 per ton.

Garbutt added that "most end markets are paying $50 for OCC [corrugated cardboard] and $50 to negative $30 for mixed paper. Our sources have told us that prices will continue to go lower for quite some time before they level off."

Garbutt added the last load of mixed paper they shipped to Toronto resulted in them losing approximately $3,000 on that load because it sat on a truck in Lindsay for two weeks while they searched for someone who would take it. They got nothing for it.

"This is the reason we have decided to eliminate the mixed paper portion at our Lochlin recycling site. We would be able to continue with corrugated cardboard recycling at our site but we would require a processing fee of $100 a ton. This would keep us going through the upcoming busy season and then we would see if it is feasible to continue."

He said the other proposal is for the municipality to take over the facility. By running the plant, he said the township would have control over processing fees for paper and cardboard for years to come. The operation could be contracted out so municipal staff would not be required, Garbutt said.

"This is something we could have discussions on. The municipality would also get the revenue from the product."

If something cannot be worked out, Garbutt Disposal said it will require space at the Minden Hills landfill to dump the cardboard they collect from businesses in Minden with their compactor truck.

"Summer is fast approaching, so we need to know as soon as possible what direction we are to proceed in."

Mayor Brent Devolin said although he is disappointed at the news, he's not surprised. He has seen the recent CBC news reports about the growing recycling crisis, not just in Canada but around the world.

He said council welcomed the information, and can understand where Garbutt is coming from. They also appreciate that the business is not shutting down immediately, but giving council time. He added that Garbutt had given them a lot to digest in his presentation and a staff report will come back to council.

Devolin went on to say that landfill issues are "kind of the elephant in the room" and it is something that will need a regional response.

Coun. Pam Sayne agreed it's a bigger problem. She said she had travelled to the Philippines, which in the past had accepted Canadian recyclables but is now shutting its doors. She noted there are also jobs at stake in our community.

In early January, The Highlander reported on how the crisis is also affecting Highlands East, Algonquin Highlands and Dysart.

At that time, Highlands East had spent nearly $20,000 more in processing fees in 2018, compared to 2017. AH said it wasn't overly worried and was expecting a slight increase related to the CPI. Dysart was looking to spend an additional $31,000 in 2018, compared to 2017.

New horizons funding deadline June 21

The New Horizons for Seniors Program (NHSP) has started its call for proposals for community-based projects that will help seniors stay active, engaged and informed.

The application period will continue until June 21.

The NHSP is a federal grants and contributions program whose goal is to support projects that help improve the well-being and quality of life of seniors and foster social inclusion and engagement of Canadian seniors in all aspects of society. The projects are led or inspired by seniors who are making a difference in the lives of others and their communities.

The program's community-based stream supports activities that engage seniors and address one or more of its five objectives: volunteering, mentoring, expanding awareness of elder abuse, social participation and capital assistance. This year, organizations are invited to apply for community-based funding under the NHSP's three national priorities: preventing elder abuse and fraud, including measures to reduce crimes and harms against seniors; supporting healthy aging in the community, addressing dementia, including community supports and intergenerational housing; and counteracting ageism in the workplace to promote labour market retention of seniors.

Organizations are eligible to receive up to $25,000 in grant funding. Organizations have the option of applying for a small grant of up to $5,000 under the community-based funding stream.

Ceremonial ground broken on contentious new arena project

By Lisa Gervais

With the beep, beep, beep of machinery behind them, Minden Hills councillors, staff, the local MP and MPP, and the public came together to officially mark the S.G. Nesbitt Memorial Arena refurbishment project.

A ceremonial ground-breaking was held Friday, May 31 while McDonald Brothers Construction cleaned up the remnants of the demolished 1972-built arena to prepare for foundation work this past Monday.

Mayor Brent Devolin recalled how his family moved to Haliburton County in 1969. As a kid, he played hockey and remembered the new metal Minden arena of the 70s.

"What a wonderful structure it was at the time," Devolin said, adding, "almost 50 years later, and we're seeing the rebirth of this facility."

The mayor said the councils of the day, that built the arena in 1972 and did repairs and additions in 1990, such as adding the community centre, were visionary.

He said the building had been a fixture in the community, hosting charity events, weddings, wakes, hockey games, and rock concerts. "Places where communities can get together are foundational in any great town."

"And, certainly this has been a great asset for Minden and we're hoping in 14 months from now, the next story will be told for the next 50-plus years in our community and it will serve us as well as the previous one has."

Devolin acknowledged that the decisions in the past, and the one to invest an estimated $12-million now, are contentious.

However, he said councils have known since 2010 that the building was approaching end of life. With staff and members of the public joining two arena task forces, the decision was finally made to do a major and costly retrofit, with the majority of the money being borrowed.

"This is a bold move and history will judge whether it was the right bold move or not," Devolin said. "Long-term investments in community assets is a risky job and the fruits of it are yielded mainly into the future. There's a lot of pressures in the short term that moneys are required, that to spend a large amount of money, it's not easy and it's not popular."

Devolin thanked present and past council members, members of arena task forces, and staff, as well as MP Jamie Schmale and MPP Laurie Scott for "being a part of a big day in Minden Hills."

"Those of you that have been around the community of Minden since '72, could you have envisioned what we've grown into? And can you imagine in 50 years hence what Minden is going to be? We're growing at double the rate of provincial growth and I think this is a part of the piece of the puzzle of the renewal of our community in going forward."

Arena update

Director of community services, Mark Coleman said the project is so far on schedule and on budget. He said they do have a contingency fund in the event it does go over cost. He said as tenders come and go, that figure is adjusted.

"We should know by the middle of June pretty much the final target cost. A lot of the tendering will be done," he said, indicating a report will come to council then and council can begin making decisions about value-added items.

He added that MBC has been utilizing local services where possible, although not everybody is available or qualified "but they are certainly making an effort. So, there are dollars being spent locally as part of the project."

Demolition of the former arena began on May 1. By mid-May, the main roof and walls were down. The final clean-up was done by the end of last week. They were planning to start the foundations on Monday. The building will start to be erected on July 4 and should be up, and closed in, by the end of August. Interior work will be done in winter. They'll do the landscaping and parking lot next spring and early summer. The commissioning of the building will then occur. That's when they turn everything on and test it. The plan is to start making ice next August in time for September 2020 use.

Coleman said the community centre remains open to the general public and people will be advised when short closures are necessary for linkage work.

You can make a difference

Garbutt Disposal's decision to stop processing mixed paper in Minden Hills shouldn't come as a surprise to anyone.

There isn't a market for the stuff.

Company owner Jim Garbutt said they lost $3,000 on one load alone. They picked it up from around town. They processed it at their Lochlin facility. They loaded it into a 53-foot trailer. They sent it down south. It got as far as Lindsay. There it sat for two weeks while markets were sought. None were found.

The situation is looking slightly better for corrugated cardboard but at the moment Garbutt said they are taking a loss, of about $15 per ton. They'll see how it goes over the summer but if it doesn't improve, they're getting out of that business, too.

The situation for plastics isn't great either.

If you watched The National last week, you would have seen Malaysian Environment Minister Yeo Bee Yin open a shipping container of so-called recyclables from Canada, only to condemn the load as garbage and say they're sending it back. The same thing has happened in the Philippines. In addition, China has continued its clamp down on so-called dirty loads.

The worldwide crash in the recycling market has caused pileups of garbage for larger Canadian municipalities, led to hefty extra costs and the risk of losing revenue. On a smaller scale, it is being felt in Haliburton County.

When it comes to China, they buy about two-thirds of North America's recyclables and for the past 18 months or so have demanded that loads cannot exceed 0.5 per cent of contamination. By contrast, the township of Minden Hills, for example, deems a dirty load to have six per cent or more recyclable or divertible material inside of it before charging a fee.

So, it seems obvious that municipalities here, and residents, have to do a better job of diverting and recycling.

To that end, we'll be interested to see what the County of Haliburton's new climate change plan will entail. We expect one of the first orders of the day will be to divert material away from the county's landfills. Dysart has discussed reducing single-use plastics and putting in water stations. It's time for the other three municipalities to do the same.

While some would say local government has to eliminate plastic bags in the county, that isn't as easy as it sounds. The City of Toronto was unsuccessful in banning plastic bags in 2012. Nor do our municipal politicians have much clout when it comes to what multi-nationals are doing with packaging. However, they can lobby our MP and MPP to take Haliburton concerns to Toronto and Ottawa respectively.

But, really, a lot of it comes down to you and I. The consumer. Some of us still buy palettes of single use plastic water bottles. Some of us use those little plastic bags for our fruit and vegetables at the grocery store. Some of us get takeaway food and drink containers that are not environmentally-friendly. Some of us still stick plastic straws in our drinks. We do this despite the fact there are more and more environmentally-friendly options out there.

If we can reduce, reuse and recycle better at home, it will have an impact locally. We can all make a difference.

The Outsider Margaritas, wieners and waving at traffic

At the fourth or fifth beep from a car or truck horn, I began to realize that we might possibly be a bit of a spectacle, such as we were standing there minding our own business.

The thing was, we were standing around a red-hot burn barrel, the flames licking at the rim, and we were drinking very large margaritas. And then there was the fact that we were standing in a front yard that bordered the 118 right in Haliburton village. Hmm, I thought as I looked around and clocked the 'Welcome to Haliburton' sign. We could be taken as being a welcoming party and I don't know if that image of us standing around a burn barrel, drinking is a good thing or not.

Now, don't get me wrong, the folks that were assembled around the aforementioned burn barrel were a fine bunch. Smart, sassy, witty, beautiful, albeit one of them refuses to wear shoes for much of the year but that just adds to his beatnik charm. We even had a yappy little dog. If only he'd been wearing a neckerchief instead of his smart collar.

The thing was, we were actually standing around a burn barrel, not a camp fire, not one of those fancy wrought iron fire pit bowl thingies. It was a real 50 gallon drum and the only other times I have stood around one of those are on cold fall days on the construction site, when the barrel is the only source of heat and the smoke from the burning material is best not inhaled, never mind allowing your young son to toast marshmallows over it. Other than that, the only association I have with a burn barrel is the obligatory scene in some gritty New York murder drama when the detectives have to go into the ghetto and talk to the homeless folk, all of whom tend to gravitate towards the warmth of the omnipresent burn barrel.

So, job site fire or hobo warming station? Take your pick but that may have been what it looked like to passersby as they drove past on Friday evening. The vehicles beeped and we waved, thrusting a large drink or equally cumbersome hot dog into the air with a gleeful cheer as we acknowledged their horn.

For a moment, I wondered what folks must think as they drove by. Were they sneering or cheering? Were they horrified or laughing hysterically? But only for a moment, then I took another swig of my margarita and joined in the fun around the burn barrel. I ate my hot dog, threw a stick for the dog and laughed as another car went by honking its horn. The music played and the daylight turned to dark. The barrel glowed brighter and marshmallows got burned. Our world shrunk from open blue skies to a dark night and orange glowing coals, and life was good standing around the burn barrel.

BEEP BEEP. Another car, another wave. Another good night in Haliburton County.

What's next? Beer, wine at the drive-thru?

Dear editor,

An open letter to MPP Laurie Scott,

It is heartening to see that our ever-vigilant, dialed-in Ford Government has been able to sift through all the really impactful agencies and organizations, individuals and programs that affect our life here in Ontario and zero in with laser-like accuracy on issues that are front of mind for most of our citizens.

This, of course, is precisely why we elected them. Some might think these concerns include education, health care, the environment, social welfare, infrastructure and so on but they are ill informed.

What we have been clamouring for, for what seems like forever, is more access to booze, particularly beer and its snooty cousin, wine. That’s right, they’ve finally heard us! First it was “Buck-a-Beer” and, because that was such a huge success, they decided to roll the dice again. Why not make beer and wine even more readily available? That’s right, soon we won’t have to wait till 11 a.m. to get a beer in a licensed establishment ... we can get started two hours earlier. Perfect!

And, to solidify their place in our hearts, it has been agreed that an existing contract with the Beer Store should be ripped up, at a huge public expense, so that beer (and wine) can also be sold in convenience stores, big box stores and grocery stores and, presumably, if that goes well, maybe Tim Hortons and McDonald’s too ... (they’re everywhere and have drive-thru’s)

You can't trump that

Dear editor,

I recently came across Rules for Teachers dated 1872. They sound like an old, regressive Conservative platform. Today, it’s cut health, education, library, research, environment, welfare and more budgets.

This is replaced with a $1 beer and free anti-carbon tax stickers.

Wow. You can’t trump that.

Taxes, taxes taxes

Dear editor,

We are being taxed to death and even upon death.

The provincial levy as set out in the Ontario Aggregate Resources Act and Environmental Tax are two taxes charged on per tonne of material at a pit and which is passed on to the consumer when purchased.

Some of these are broken down on an invoice but most are included in the overall cost for material purchased.

Some small pits may be exempt from the environmental charge however few in nature. Environmental tax is also charged on all electronic products. The new carbon tax is on gasoline, diesel and heating fuels, hydro and in essence groceries caused from business having to pay more for delivery of their merchandise.

We have all seen the price for goods increased since the carbon tax was introduced. The carbon tax rebate is dependant on income and family size and is minimal for seniors. Programs for small business upon application is based on a seven per cent rebate from a lump sum fund. There are no clear guidelines and the application process is cumbersome and has an abundance of red tape. Some agriculture and fisheries are exempt from the carbon tax however other businesses and companies are not.

Our prime minister has promoted a tax that is obscure, inflammatory and confusing with no clear guidelines outlining what the Liberals are going to do with all revenue acquired from the carbon tax. Global warming and carbon emissions cannot be resolved with an unworkable tax. Perhaps if the prime minister had to pay for his own groceries, fuel, and hydro he would realize this carbon tax is causing stress to the average hard working public, especially those on fixed incomes.

A bib wins a beverage at Highland Yard

By Lisa Gervais

Places for People is teaming up with Boshkung Social for the 2019 edition of the Highland Yard.

Jack Russel told Minden Hills council May 30 that the partnership means every registrant presenting a bib at the Water Street establishment will receive a free beer or other beverage after the run.

He said other changes include that they have expanded the age groups for the five and 10K to include 0-9 and 70-plus.

Registration costs have remained the same except for the 2K individual and group fee, which has been increased to $20 and $30 for a group of four.

Last year, more than 350 people registered for the race, which raised more than $20,000.

Russel also shared results of a survey they conducted after the 2018 race. It revealed: the race is most popular for the 40-49 age group (28 per cent); it's very popular among seasonal residents (57 per cent); and people spend a fair bit of money when they come to the race, with 23 per cent dropping between $100 and $150. There's also a high awareness that the race is a fundraiser for Places for People.

Russel added it's early days, but organizers are considering a special 7K race next year to mark the event's 50th anniversary. He said the history of the race is that two people working at Camp Onondaga had a bet about who could race the 7K to the Rockcliffe Tavern the fastest in 1970. Highland Yard started in 1971.

Russel said while the Highland Yard is a run for affordable housing, it's more than about simply providing a shelter.

He provided a testimonial from a tenant named Angie.

"This program is not simply focused on housing the homeless. It focuses on the person and their needs. Places for People takes a genuine interest in who we are and what we need so that one day we can give back to the community."

Places for People update

John Rogers also provided councillors with an update on Places for People.

"We are poised to take bigger steps toward increasing housing," he said.

He said one initiative they are working on is becoming a vehicle for social bonds to finance new housing. They are also looking to facilitate development of multi-unit properties. Another aim is smaller units to better reflect local needs.

"Increased density, intensified focus on building community, mixed demographics, and being open to variations in tenure and management," he said.

Places for People currently operates five properties in Haliburton County.

Minden Hills news

One thing he highlighted was that the township had made "considerable progress" in reducing its energy consumption and GHG emissions from 2011 to 2016, with an overall reduction of approximately 4.1 per cent during the time period.

He added low-cost measures would help reduce energy use, suggesting upgrades to exterior and interior lighting, programmable devices to control energy use on HVAC and hot water storage systems, and the replacement of door seals.

He said educating management and staff to be better stewards was also a good idea.

The works garage was an energy sucker in need of work, Peters said.

"New and emerging technologies in energy consumption monitoring and/or internet-based control systems should be considered for implementation in buildings with non-regular utilization."

(Minden Hills news compiled by Lisa Gervais)

Minden joins climate change plan

Minden Hills council became the final lower-tier municipality to back the County of Haliburton's climate change plan and shoreline protection bylaw.

The County of Haliburton has been seeking support for its efforts to make a plan to mitigate and adapt to climate change county-wide, as well as create new regulations to preserve natural shorelines.

County planner and deputy CAO Charley White, and director of public works Craig Douglas made a presentation about both initiatives to the May 30 council meeting.

They were seeking support as well as dedicated staff time from Minden Hills for climate change.

Councillors unanimously voted to support both projects, joining with Highlands East, Algonquin Highlands and Dysart et al in doing so.

Coun. Pam Sayne, who helped launch a climate change action committee in Minden Hills during the last term of council, said she was "elated" with the climate change plan in particular. She said members of the CCAC felt they were "spinning their wheels" but now would be "smiling."

Greenhouse gas emissions cut

Council received a lengthy report from Tyler Peters of Greenview Environmental Management in Bancroft. He's been working on the township's energy conservation and demand management plan.

The report is a result of the province mandating that public sector agencies monitor, assess, and plan for energy conservation and demand related to their buildings and facilities.

The initial plan was done in 2014 and Peters reported on progress made to the current, 2019, review.

Dysart takes trash in-house

By Joseph Quigley

Dysart et al is bringing its landfill maintenance in-house through a series of moves staff said will improve service levels for a similar or reduced cost.

The municipality terminated its contract with Schwandt Aggregate for services at the Harcourt landfill May 3 due to non-compliance. This follows the municipality taking steps in April to take over maintenance at the Haliburton landfill.

Director of public works Rob Camelon said staff have been planning to do all landfill work internally after another round of contracts expired in 2020. But staff accelerated the timeline at Haliburton and Harcourt after issues with contractors.

"It's just something we feel we could manage better in-house. Ultimately, it's our liability anyways," Camelon said. "We just feel buying our own equipment and hiring our own staff, whenever they're not working on landfills, we can always use them on the road side of things."

Schwandt Aggregate managed the Harcourt landfill for several years. Camelon said the contractor was recently not doing enough cover work, which involves moving soil over new deposits of waste.

"That just wasn't getting done," Camelon said. "We take our landfills pretty seriously and to keep it in the good graces of the Ministry (of Environment, Conservation and Parks), we decided to take it into in-house."

However, Camelon said the two sides mutually ended the agreement on good terms. The contractor could not be reached for comment before press time.

Dysart took over the Haliburton landfill after the years-long contractor there declined to take on the work. Council subsequently directed staff to take steps to take on the maintenance there.

Schwandt Aggregate has also provided winter maintenance in the Harcourt area. But public works recommended the work be done internally as well, requiring the purchase of a heavy-duty snow plow. Staff are also exploring whether the work can be done by county or Highlands East municipal plows.

For the municipality's other contracted landfill sites in Kennis Lake and West Guilford, the plan is not to renew when the contracts expire in 2020.

Council backs new equipment

Council discussed the Harcourt situation May 28. Council approved the lease of an excavator for $5,013 per month for a four-year period, with only Coun. John Smith dissenting. The municipality will use it at non-contracted landfills.

Council also unanimously approved a tender go out for a new tag-a-long trailer to carry the heavier excavator. The estimated cost will be $41,000.

However, council delayed voting on a tender for a new snow plow for the Harcourt area to get more cost analysis.

"It's a matter of demonstrating to us the analysis has been done," Smith said. "For years council, prior to my arrival, decided to contract this stuff out and thought they were doing it for good reason, probably for economic reasons ... Let's look at the facts, look at the hard numbers."

Camelon estimates the annual price of Haliburton landfill maintenance will be $120,225, compared to the $117,421 cost of contracting the services in 2018 and $146,231 in 2017.

For Harcourt, a new snow plow is expected to cost $265,000, with a new equipment operator to cost $68,000. Harcourt's landfill contract was approximately $57,000 annually, while its winter maintenance contract was $78,000 in 2018.

Retail store creating buzz in downtown Haliburton

By Lisa Harrison

Haliburton's main street has a unique new shop devoted to helping home and cottage owners with environmentally careful critter control, plus the care and raising of bees.

Called The Hive, it's the new retail storefront for Eco-Choice Pest Control. Eco-Choice owners Ray Martin and Juliette Arsenault began the business out of their home in Minden in 2011 as the only pest control service company in the Highlands.

Looking for space for expansion this year, they were surprised and pleased to find a prime location for sale rather than lease. Arsenault said in addition to expansion needs, they've also found a growing demand for a product sales location because many people looking for pest control options are do-it-yourselfers or are unable to afford full services.

The couple chose to create a pest control business based on their "heavy science background" – Martin in environmental biology and pesticide development, Arsenault in ecology and urban forestry, said Martin.

"We recognized a need for integrated pest management and more of a focus on pest lifecycle and biology to help achieve prevention and control."

"Pests don't have to be part of cottage country, and neither do harsh chemicals," said Arsenault. "We wanted to offer a 'mom and pop' type option for people in the area, provide amazing customer service and helping educate about common pest species. We often say that every inspection comes with a free education."

That education can help save lives. For example, the couple noted that the chemical permethrin is "extremely toxic" to cats, and improper usage of pesticides has been known to cause health problems and even death for humans.

"The consequences are so horrendous, so if we can prevent [even] one situation like that from happening ..." said Arsenault.

The Hive also features mechanical and other pest control options. These include mouse and raccoon baits and specialty products such as a live trap cage that only raccoons are able to enter, and a wind-powered "spider" that spins to keep birds – and their droppings – away from decks and boats.

Martin and Arsenault keep their own bees and will sell honey at The Hive. They'll also fill a local service gap by selling bee-keeping equipment (until now the closest sales areas have been Innisfil and Port Hope).

The Hive's grand opening will be held Saturday, June 8 at 199 Highland St. in Haliburton. The event includes a 10 per cent discount on all pest control products.

Summer hours are Monday to Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Chamber successes during a year of transition

By Lisa Gervais

It's been a year of transition at the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce with manager Jennifer Locke celebrating her one-year anniversary on May 28 and president Andrea Strano stepping into her role mid-term.

With a growing membership base and stable slate of directors, the chamber had many successes, Locke told members at the 58th annual general meeting at Rhubarb Restaurant this past Tuesday morning.

She conceded it had been a "whirlwind" of learning: about member businesses, and community economic development.

Locke said the chamber's social media reach and engagement continues to go up; their events continue to grow in popularity and they continue to sign on new members.

"We worked this year to foster and build relationships to improve the chamber's profile," she added.

She highlighted partnerships that produced the #buycloseby project, which has been successful, and the more recent workforce development video that has had tens of thousands of views.

There were also six small business week events in the fall, monthly chamber breakfasts and the gala. She thanked administrative assistant Angela Jones for her help.

She said with a new board, they will continue to work on housekeeping items, including policies, procedures and governance structure.

Strano agreed, saying this term will be about updating the strategic plan, governance structures "and ensuring our activities are strategic and value-added to members."

"I see a bright future ahead for the chamber with a strong focus on partnerships, collaboration and ensuring to provide strong advocacy to enhance value for our members and strengthen our business community," she said.

Bringing Canadian, Japanese landscapes to Minden

By Meagan Secord

Although he is a painter, San Murata played the violin with his jazz trio at the opening of his new art exhibition in Minden this past Friday night.

The Japan, Ontario and Quebec: Living for Landscapes exhibition debuted at the Minden Hills Cultural Centre May 31. The pieces are Murata's interpretations of landscapes in Canada and Japan, done in Gouache, a more pigmented form of watercolour.

"I think this sort of landscape in its folk appeal is something that this community would certainly enjoy," said Laurie

Carmount, Agnes Jamieson Gallery curator.

She said viewers can guess where most of the Ontario and Quebec paintings are from, but might confuse the paintings of Japan for landscapes in Eastern Ontario.

Murata said he was influenced by American folk artist Grandma Moses when he started painting. Some of the opening night attendees say his work even looks like hers.

Skye Morrison, a friend of Murata's that helped him set up the exhibition, said his work was originally showcased in Japan and they wanted to bring it close to where they live for most of the year in Northumberland.

"We wanted to apply to the arts council for an exhibition assistants' grant but to apply at a big gallery like Peterborough, there's too many applicants and it was actually the Art Gallery of Peterborough that suggested coming to see them (Minden Hills)," she said.

Murata said he is thrilled to be showcasing his art where some of his favourite painter's [Andre Lapine's] art work is on display.

"I'm not a good painter you know? But I have my own style, that's what keeps me going. I've been painting every day for 40 years," he said.

HHHS offering bedside singing and death cafes

By Meagan Secord

Haliburton Highlands Health Services (HHHS) is sparking conversation with new initiatives in its hospice/palliative care division.

Bedside singing and death cafés are new initiatives that have been recently launched.

Bedside singers are a group of people that will visit hospice/palliative care clients and sing to them in an effort to soothe their discomfort.

Nancy Gosse, the interim hospice coordinator at HHHS says the idea has been around for awhile but it's the first time Haliburton has tried it.

"Music, in general, is universal," she says. "Regardless of language, music touches people's souls."

Currently, the program has about 12 volunteers and is working on getting them into small groups and bedside- ready.

"There are a lot of musicians and artists in Haliburton area that really celebrates music," said Gosse. "The concept of taking some of that music and that practice of sharing music and incorporating it into hospice palliative care is just a beautiful fit."

Bedside singer Dianne Hagerman has sung for the Peterborough bedside group for the past year and was excited when the initiative came to her hometown.

"I just think it's a beautiful way to support people who are dying and their families and just sort of help them through that transition," she said.

She added although the initiative can be emotional, it makes a difference to the people who are struggling.

"Sometimes it's very emotional depending on the situation, sometimes you'll be singing with people who are in a palliative situation but they might be weeks away from dying," says Hagerman.

The hope is that the group will eventually visit people receiving palliative care in their homes but for now, rehearsals have started.

Death cafes

The bedside singing program isn't the only initiative that is trying to help people in palliative care. Death cafés have started popping up around the county as a way to provide support in a non-clinical environment.

The concept of a death café is to provide a casual and safe space where people can converse about death," said Gosse.

She says people can't always talk to their family or friends openly about death without causing discomfort. At the death café, they can ask questions and join conversations without feeling guilty.

The next death cafés are June 6, between 2-4 p.m. at Baked and Battered in Haliburton and September 10, between 1-3 p.m. at the South Algonquin Diner in Wilberforce.

Graduates use art to create paths forward

By Joseph Quigley

Haliburton School of Art and Design 2019 valedictorian Taylor Luecke did not expect to deliver a speech as the voice of more than 35 graduates.

The school hosted its annual commencement ceremony May 31. The graduates of 12 different art and design programs were honoured as they received their diplomas in front of their peers and families.

Luecke said graduating as her class's valedictorian was a surreal experience.

"I love that school so much and I never thought I'd find a place as cool as that. I feel super proud to be that person," she said. "I am one of the first in my family to graduate from post-secondary school, so I feel like it's a big thing."

The Millbrook native graduates with an alternative design diploma and a digital image design certificate.

Although she said she always knew she wanted to create, she did not always know she wanted to graduate from college.

"It brought me a lot of joy and it eases a lot of my anxieties," she said about her art. "I saw lots of doctors about it (anxiety) and all they wanted to do was prescribe me medication."

Instead, she looked inward for solutions. After high school, she travelled to British Columbia, moving from place to place and doing odd jobs to connect with herself.

She found that connection through her art.

"It was kind of like my way to take a feeling, freeze it in time and explore it and understand it. Be able to work through it," Luecke said. "That form of therapy has always come natural for me."

She came back home and soon after accepted an offer to attend HSAD.

"The community is really my favourite thing," Luecke said. "I was able to be completely myself and create from my soul. Be able to dance down the halls and people would dance with me. It was just amazing, the support that runs through that school."

Fleming College president Maureen Adamson said the school's experience leaves its mark on students.

"The relations you already made in your time in Fleming will enhance your future in ways you may not even recognize just yet," she told graduates. "You are a part of our Fleming and our future."

Fleming College professor of Indigenous Studies Liz Stone told students there is more to life than the pursuit of wealth.

"Oftentimes we're asked 'what do you want to be when you grow up?'" Stone said. "Initially we think, 'I'm going to have a big, big house. I'm going to have a big, big bank account'... We have to get out of our head. We have to be aware of what's going on around us and we have to live within our heart."

In her commencement speech, Luecke said for her and her classmates, art is the way they tackle tough subjects.

"It's difficult to tell someone that art is your therapy, your drive and your passion,"

Luecke said. "For us, art is a form of communication. A way to translate our ideas into reality."

REAL ESTATE SELLING TIP #2

Should I Agree to Provide a Survey?

If the buyer is asking for a current survey and you don't have one available, the answer is no. It's a simple matter of practicality – it can take months and cost a substantial amount to get a new survey. Make sure that any terms regarding surveys in an offer refer to 'existing' or 'available' surveys or those 'within your possession'. Otherwise, you may be on the hook for an expensive project that will add months to your closing.

If, however, you are unsure about critical aspects of your property – for example if the cottage is built over the lot line or the size and shape of your lot – a current survey will give you clarity on what you own and where it is. Though many have tried, you can't sell what you don't own.

Just leave plenty of time to get it done.

People should be informed and prepared before they take on a DIY building job. Good stock.

The do's and don'ts of DIY

By Lisa Harrison

Whether you have plans to become a 'weekend warrior' or take on a more extensive project, it's important to start with an honest assessment of your own do-it-yourself (DIY) skill levels and those of your DIY crew.

If you go ahead, put safety first. Use safety glasses, ear protection and protective clothing. Make sure you know how to use the necessary tools well, avoid slippery materials and keep the work area clear of debris.

Smaller projects may require no more than a good sketch, but professional designs are required for structural work. Many local building supply centres have design staff who can create drawings that meet municipal requirements, and the Highlands are home to several professional design companies. Your designer can also create a materials list for you.

Plumbing, electrical, heating and roofing projects should be contracted to licensed experts to avoid problems such as flooding, frozen pipes, foundation damage, fires and health and safety issues. Structural changes are also best left to professional contractors to ensure the proper overall security and finishing of the building and to avoid unforeseen costs for expert repairs.

Some professional contractors will allow DIY'ers to work with them, which will reduce costs and help you gain experience.

Permits are legally required for structural construction and for demolition work. Your municipal clerk or building department staff can help you determine when you require a permit and answer any questions you have.

Seek local advice to set a realistic budget and schedule for this area so you can avoid running out of money, time or both before your project is done. Set aside a contingency fund of 15 to 20 per cent over budget to address unforeseen issues. Schedule for factors such as the weather, supply time for permits and products, your available time, your skill level, and the availability of any professional contractor you'll need.

They honked all weekend long

J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary school students performed the play Honk four times over the past weekend. The play is based on Hans Christian Anderson's beloved story, "The Ugly Duckling." It tells the story of an odd-looking baby duck, Ugly, and his quest to find his mother. The performances played to packed crowds of proud parents and grandparents. Photos by Meagan Secord

Home and Cottage Show had it all

There were construction materials, snorkeling gear, geo-caching and more at this year's Home and Cottage Show and attendees soaked it all up. Parking lots and side streets were full with trucks and cars as A. J. LaRue Arena, and the Haliburton Curling Club filled up for the weekend's festivities. The show offered music inside from Canoe FM and doggy daycare outside from I Love Your Dog and Tails and Trails. (Meagan Secord)

Red Hawks girls soccer wins gold

By Joseph Quigley

The Haliburton Highlands Secondary School junior girls soccer team were victorious at the COSSA championship with a 1-0 underdog win May 30.

The Red Hawks competed in Belleville in the single-A division. They defeated Nicholson with a 2-1 overtime win in the semi-finals and followed that up with a 1-0 victory against the Kenner Rams to take their second-straight title.

Captain Hayley Boylan said the team maintained a positive attitude going into the finals, despite losing to Kenner twice previously this season. "We're a small school and I think all it comes down to is our spirit and our drive to really push ourselves that extra limit," Boylan said.

Coach Janice Scheffee said it was an incredible day of soccer for the girls.

"The HHSS team saved their best games of the season to the very end.

It was an excellent demonstration of team play from all players," she said. "This group of girls is very competitive and they do not like to lose. They have worked extremely hard to improve their skills and field positioning all season."

Scheffee said goaltender Courtney Semach kept the Red Hawks in the final game early with outstanding goaltending. Gillian Rosik squeaked past her defender and netted a goal before half-time.

"Heading into the second half and up by a goal, the Red Hawks started to play an even tighter defensive game, keeping Kenner to the outside," Scheffee said. "Using all the energy they had, HHSS controlled the ball in the final few minutes and earned themselves a second-straight COSSA gold medal."

Boylan said the group fought through injuries to win the championship. She herself played on an injured knee through the back half of the final game.

"It was painful, but it would have been even more painful if we had let them score a goal to tie it up," she said.

Semach earned player of the game honours for her outstanding goaltending, Scheffee said.

With the season behind them, Boylan and other second-year players will move on to compete at the senior level after earning back-to-back titles. But the juniors will have nine players able to return next year.

"They will be missed," Scheffee said. "The junior soccer program continues to look promising at HHSS."

Boylan said this win will be a big confidence booster for the juniors next year.

"This win will really help the first-year juniors be really able to develop their team next year," she said.

"They've seen and experienced what they need to do to accomplish that again."

Haliburton County Fair turns 155

By Lisa Gervais

With a nice, sunny day forecast for Saturday, the 155th Haliburton County Fair is all set to go, says president Eric Casper.

Casper said there's lots of new and different things going on this year at the Minden Fairgrounds.

For example, in the kid zone, they have a new company, called Hands on Exotics, coming to do presentations with animals. They also have a new children's entertainer, Tim Holland. Show times will be every hour starting at 10 a.m. and finishing at 4 p.m.

The Minden ComiCom is a popular addition to the fair, and this year there'll be prizes for people in costume.

Casper said families can come and visit DadPool (a family-friendly version of Dead Pool) and his vehicle.

He said Irene Heaven from Abbey Gardens is doing some displays called Earthly Feelings.

And, there will be wagon rides; Home Brew 2 is part of an all new and local lineup that will include seven bands over seven hours. And, finally there's now a Powder Puff Horse Pull for women pulling with a single horse.

Casper said the show remains a big part of Haliburton County culture for a number of reasons.

"It's a family-friendly event; it helps promote and educate about agricultural issues and it may be the only time some people will get to be around large farm animals."

Other highlights of the Minden Agricultural Society event are getting together with friends for food and beverages; watching some great shows, such as the horse pull, mounted games, old time plowing, and learning about the Haliburton Horseman's Association.

Once again, the exhibit buildings will be full of quilts, art, photos, plants and baking. There'll be lots of vendors and artisans, too.

"The Haliburton County Farmers Association tent was great last year," Casper said.

He also encouraged people to check out this year's speaker's corner, which is featuring talks about the environment and agriculture.

The schedule is: 11:30 - 12:30 p.m. Malcolm and Cecil Cockwell of Haliburton Forest; 12:30 - 1:30 p.m.

Melissa Johnstone of Haliburton, Kawartha Lakes, Pine Ridge District Health Unit; and 1:30 - 2:30 p.m. Peter Skylanda of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

As always, the fair kicks off with the Friday night beef barbecue dinner. The entertainment is by Rhythm and Grace, the Duketow Family. Tickets are $25 for adults; $15 for 12 and under and free for kids six and under.

Tickets to Saturday's fair are $10 adults, $7 for kids 12 and under, or a family pass for $25.

See their Facebook page for posters with details of the day's events. Facebook.com/haliburtoncountyfair.
